PLATE LOADED ROW

GR802

The BodyKore Stacked Series Seated Row is designed to tone and strengthen your upper body, which is essential for everyday movements, including pulling. Increasing your upper body strength improves posture, protects your shoulders, and reduces your risk of injury.

This Plate Loaded Seated Row features independent movement arms, diverging pulling angles and regressive strength curves to reduce force at the bottom part of the movement and allow for a full range of motion. The large footplate and chest pad support increased stabilization for greater muscle concentration. Multiple grip positions provide greater variety and fit options. This machine is designed with high-density cushions for safety and comfort and the frame is made of 11-gauge steel that will last through your toughest workout.
